Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 8/25/08 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Martin et al. (5,828,197) in view of Gilboa (6,380,732).

With respect to the claims, Martin et al disclose a manipulator for use in performing medical procedures on a portion of a body of a patient, comprising: a medical tool (12) a positioning mechanism (14) which carries the medical tool, as best seen in FIG.2, the positioning mechanism being capable of moving the tool with at least one degree of freedom; a remote positioning tracking system (16,18); as set forth in column 6, lines48-54, capable of tracking the position of the medical tool relative to a predetermined frame of reference in three dimensions; as set forth in column 9, lines 60-67; column 10, lines 1-26; the positioning mechanism comprises first and second arms which is pivotably support the medical tool and which are movable independently of each other; as best seen in FIGS.3-5; further including a haptic interface which communicates with the manipulator controller that directs movement of the positioning mechanism, the haptic interface is adapted to receive manually input position information from an operator and communicate position signal based on the information to the manipulator controller; as set forth in column 13,56-67, column 14, lines 1-46; columns 20, lines 21-43; at least a portion of the of the remote position tracking system being arranged remotely from the position mechanism (wireless).

It is noted that Martin et al did not teach of a position tracking system including an electromagnetic field generator for producing a multidimensional electromagnetic field in three mutual distinguishable dimensions the position tracking system being capable of tracking the position of the medical tool relative to a predetermined frame of reference in three-dimensions as the tool is moved by the positioning mechanism, as claimed by applicant. However, in a similar art, Gilboa, evidences the use of a position tracking system including an electromagnetic field generator for producing a multidimensional electromagnetic field in three mutual distinguishable dimensions to determine the three-dimensional position and three-axial rotational orientation of an object and to track a single object or a multiple objects simultaneously in a single system.

Therefore, given the teaching of Gilboa, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use a position tracking system in the device of Martin et al, as taught by Gilboa to determine the three-dimensional position and three-axial rotational orientation of an object and to track translation and rotation of a single object or a multiple objects simultaneously in a single system.

Response to Amendment

Applicant's arguments, see Remarks, filed 8/25/08, with respect to the rejection(s) of claim(s) 1-8 under 103 have been fully considered and are persuasive. Therefore, the rejection has been withdrawn. However, upon further consideration, a new ground(s) of rejection is made in view of Martin et al.

Conclusion

A shortened statutory period for reply to this action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action.
